

ABSTRACT

A method for forming a composite includes providing a projection component comprising discrete projections of resin extending from a surface of a base. The distal ends of the projections are locally heated and the projections are foreshortened. A preformed
5 substrate is applied to the distal ends of the projections to bond the preformed substrate and projection component.

20581026.2.doc